1. The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the plane was the cold. It was a sharp contrast to the warm, humid air of the tropics. The wind was biting, and the clouds were thick and grey. I shivered as I looked out over the vast, flat landscape.
The horizon was low, and the sky was overcast. The ground was a mix of brown and green, with patches of snow and ice. The trees were bare and skeletal, their branches reaching out like dead hands.
The air was heavy with the scent of burning wood and the distant, faint smell of gunpowder. I felt a sense of isolation and a deep, unexplained longing. The world seemed so different, so alien. I was alone in a vast, empty space, and I knew that I was never going home.
